Once the lighthearted, adidas ultra boost womens jovial superstar, Dwight Howard's reputation took a turn for the not-so-good after the turmoil between he and his coach came to light, and with his public demands of either being traded to the Nets or leaving after his contract with Orlando is complete coming straight from his mouth, Dwight's got a lot of image purification ahead of him this offseason. Unfortunately, he won't have the Olympics to redeem himself, because he'll be missing out due to injury, but this patriotic red, white, and blue make-up of the adidas adiPower Howard 3 is what he could've been wearing while swatting lay-ups and throwing down monster two-handers against the rest of the world. Another look at the USA colorway of Howard's third three-striper below, so take a gander and let us know where you think Dwight will ultimately land.

Jeremy Scott has unleashed a five-point touch of death over what has been for some a sick five-day weekend, his latest designs having previewed across the pond at Berlin's Bread Butter tradeshow. We've seen some new twists adidas tubular mens on familiar Metro Attitude remixes as well as a couple new styles, and now it's time for those we'd only seen in the background to flesh out the rest of this set. J.Scott's Pink Poodle and Camo Teddy Bear join his adidas Originals Streetball in a new colorway, plus loafers, low-profile lowtops, double-buckled highs and another standout hightop whose adidas ultra boost branding somehow manages to beat even Three Stripes most MEGA. Click through for a bunch of new images, let us know which pairs catch your eye and stick with Sneaker News for release info.

Recent starred-and-stripped sneakers and apparel clued us in that Jeremy Scott considers himself a patriot, and he went full-on Katy Perry with an explosion of new designs in and around Independence Day including this expressive take on a shade that signifies the absence of all color. The Jeremy Scott x adidas Originals JS Wings returns in a black patent leather ensemble that all but insures they'll be showing up on the red carpet at a major award show sometime soon. This model recently previewed at Bread Butter Berlin is coming up as a adidas yeezy boost first half release for next year so you'll have plenty of time to figure out with what to wear them.

Jeremy Scott is clearly one of those guys that was born to push the envelope. Sure he suffered a setback recently with that cuff controversy but that doesn't mean he's about to hang in the towel. In fact the sneak peek shown here pretty much guarantees that his lineup of adidas Originals sneakers is only getting wilder. He's back on the bear thing, this time mixing it up with a camo look and throwing a little adidas cap onto said bear. Click through with us to check out the Jeremy Scott x adidas Originals Army Bear and let us know if you're feeling this entry into the ongoing camo wave that's been going down.

adidas Originals presents the all-new AR D1 Low, an sleek new model that pays homage to its luxury roots with the slim profile and premium construction. To the sneakerheads out there who love to distinguish their kicks with some custom laces, Starks Laces is a household adidas ultra boost mens name. The NYC-bred designer of footwear accessories has provided us with great options to give our kicks that extra umph and has reached beyond Nike and adidas and into the realm of iconic and influential brands like Marc Jacobs, colette, and OriginalFake. Alex Dymond, founder of Starks, was given the opportunity to design a Vans OTW Woessner, and clearly his attention to minute yet powerful details shines through with the zig-zag stitching, metal eyelets, and signature shoelaces that adorn the nautical-themed canvas and suede uppers. Watch for the Starks x Vans OTW Woessner to hit select Vans OTW retailers this September.
